“At SmithGroupJJR, we are immensely proud of the progress that HPDC continues to make and see our financial support of the Collaborative as one of our most successful investments. We see the increasingly-rapid adoption of the open standard as proof of this investment strategy.”

- Russell Perry, FAIA, LEED Fellow, SmithGroupJJR

Support the Health Product Declaration® (HPD) Collaborative

The building industry’s leading consensus-based standard for reporting building product content and associated health information

Accelerate the movement toward human health

The building industry is recognizing its vital role to provide healthier building products that positively contribute to the health of people and the environment. The Health Product Declaration® Collaborative (HPDC) created, supports and evolves the Health Product Declaration (HPD) Open Standard, through stakeholder collaboration. The Standard is the leading method for providing accurate, reliable and consistent reporting of building product content and associated health information.

Your support makes possible:

...The HPDC member organization - a thriving and growing community of industry leaders driving innovation through transparency, disclosure and open reporting throughout the built environment

...The HPD Open Standard - A transparent and unbiased framework for manufacturers to cost effectively and accurately report material health information

...The HPD Public Repository - Public access to essential information for making choices that have a positive impact on human and environmental health

...Tools and training to help achieve the LEED v4 and other green building rating system credits

And much more!

Material Health Matters

The HPD Open Standard and HPD reports translate data about building products into specific actionable information for projects where material health matters. A sampling of industry-wide tools created by the HPD Collaborative includes:

Product Reporting
HPD Builder 2.0, the most accurate and efficient way for manufacturers to report, manage and share building product contents and associated health information.

Education and Training Materials
HPD Project Team User Guide provides guidance and “how to” information for project teams that advances practical use of the HPD Open Standard and HPD reports. Online training and support resources make it easy to create and use HPD reports.

Industry-wide, Public Resources
HPD Public Repository is the authoritative source for published HPDs, created by manufacturers and used by architects, designers, project teams, property owners and other stakeholders. Access to search and download completed HPDs is open to the public, free of charge.

In development are two additional resources for our community: Program for Third Party Preparation and Verification and optional API participation for electronic data sharing.
Gain visibility & recognition for your leadership

HPD Collaborative is a non-profit, 501(c)(6) member organization. The financial support of our Members and Sponsors is essential for ensuring continued growth of the HPD Open Standard and the disclosure and transparency movement. Your contributions directly support important and substantive HPDC initiatives that benefit the materials health ecosystem as a whole.

Your commitment to an annual sponsorship builds a strong financial foundation that enables HPDC to pursue our community’s vision of healthier products and increase the value of your contributions.

As a Sponsor, you gain a higher level of industry visibility and recognition for your leadership in the realm of material health, disclosure and transparency.

HPDC Program for 2016-2017 Sponsorships

Sponsorship opportunities are available to HPDC General Members ($1,500 annual dues)
